Navy Medical Service Corps Lt. Ted Macie, who is an active-duty officer, a Navy health administrator and a medical recruiter, revealed late November the damning Department of Defense data indicating a massive surge in cardiac conditions among active-duty aviators in 2022, a year or so after the mandatory Wuhan coronavirus (COVID-19) vaccination, compared to the five-year average preceding that year.

"I went in today and I'm doing the same thing: a five-year average. However, I'm comparing it to 2022. And I'm using only fixed-wing pilots and helicopter pilots on active duty," Macie said enumerating various heart-related diseases with the corresponding percentage increase. The most shocking are cases of heart failure which went up by a whopping 973 percent. Cardiomyopathy and myocarditis incidents climbed to 152 percent and 151 percent, respectively. There was a 69 percent surge in systemic heart diseases and 62 percent in pulmonary heart diseases. Thirty-six percent increase of hypertensive diseases were reported as well as 63 percent of other forms of cardiac conditions. In a recent episode of "Keep the Republic" with Daniel Bobinski, which featured the whistleblower's video, the host called on anybody who knows what could be causing the alarming increase of serious medical conditions suddenly appearing in the military aviators. "Please ... by all means ... tell someone. Our national defense could be at stake," he urged.

But anti-vaccine advocates have long been explaining and showing evidence that the "experimental" vaccines are causing this. In fact, Macie's wife, Mara Macie, has repeatedly emphasized the U.S. government's "unreasonable" treatment of military troops during the COVID-19 pandemic. She also argued that now, there is already a high level of mistrust in the military's leadership and demanded accountability as "the only answer." Mara is currently running for Florida's 5th Congressional District in the U.S. House of Representatives.

"So you may have seen my wife's recent post and I want to elaborate on that and give you an example as to why reinstatement, back pay and apologies are not enough," Macie said in his video on Nov. 27.

The recent report followed a revelation covered by the Gateway Pundit in July, which cited a leaked military study admitting a spike in myocarditis cases by at least 151 percent post-vaccination in the U.S. military. Gilbert Cisneros Jr., the Undersecretary of Defense for Personnel and Readiness, confirmed the increase, noting 275 cases of myocarditis in 2021, a significant rise from the annual average observed from 2016 to 2020.

Officials who rolled out illegal COVID-19 mandates should be punished: Mara Macie

Now being deeply involved in the ongoing wars and a low turnout in military recruitment, Missouri Senator Eric Schmitt has been calling for the rehiring of previously discharged service members with "full back pay, rank and an apology." But that is a big NO for Mara Macie because this move would be unfair to the service members who suffered because of the unconstitutional mandates. The accountable leaders should be investigated by the Congress, she said.

"Every single military 'leader' who was informed by service members, presented them with the law, and still did nothing, should be investigated until we remove all those who put their careers above the mental and physical safety of our service members and their families," she said and pointed out that after thousands of military men were treated with "disrespect" and fired because of "tyranny," there is now a complete lack of trust among those who were not only involuntarily separated, but also those who walked away (including just shy of retirement), those who fought from within but were flagged for promotion, those who didn't want to take the shot but were coerced and their family members who have been told that the community's mental and physical health is important to that alleged leadership.

She vowed that if she gets elected to Congress, she will lead the charge for accountability and the investigation into those who violated their oath of office. She said that their honorable status would be forfeited, in exchange for personal advancement. "Justice must prevail," she stated.

Her husband agreed and posted on X that he, his wife Mara and thousands of others will not stop until there's accountability. "It's the ONLY way to right the ship. The effects from this are just beginning, and to simply overlook them is a disservice to us and the country," he said.

Meanwhile, recent information published by the U.S. Army disclosed that 97 percent of active-duty U.S. troops are fully vaccinated against COVID-19, 90 percent of Army National Guard members are fully vaccinated, and 91 percent of U.S. Army Reserve members are fully vaccinated.
